

Kellogg earns No. 1 ranking—three times

Zell Conference reveals next marketing wave

Siebel Scholars named

Risk Management winners

Leadership Greater Chicago taps Kellogg alums

IEMBA Live-In Week brings world home to Kellogg

CIM Week sets great expectations

MBA Update lands in Japan

2002-03 conference schedule

Development builds partnerships

Address Update
Alumni Home
Submit News

Index
Search
Internal Site
Northwestern University

Kellogg Search

© Nathan Mandell

Pictured, with Dean Besanko from left to right, are Brigette Robin Wolf, Christopher Dupre, Rajul Aggarwal, Jerome Clavel and Derek Yung (all '03).

Siebel Scholars named

Five Kellogg students honored as Siebel Scholars

Associate Dean of Academic Affairs David Besanko (center) congratulates this year's Siebel Scholars award winners. Pictured, with Dean Besanko from left to right, are Brigette Robin Wolf, Christopher Dupre, Rajul Aggarwal, Jerome Clavel and Derek Yung (all '03). The Siebel Scholars, chosen for academic merit and leadership excellence, each received a $25,000 cash award to be used for tuition costs and expenses in their second year of studies. "We are extremely proud of the academic achievements of our students," said Kellogg School Dean Dipak C. Jain. "This award is another indication of the excellence and innovation that our faculty and students, working together, bring to the Kellogg culture." Eleven schools, including Kellogg, are part of the Siebel Scholars Program, sponsored by Siebel Systems Inc., which provides eBusiness applications software.